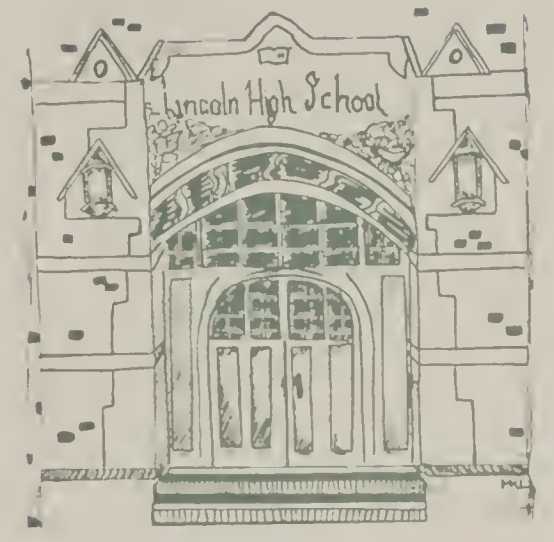
Foreword

We, the class of '28, are now compelled to look forward to the time when we are no longer members of P. H. S., but real citizens of Plymouth. We hope as we take our places in the ranks of citizenship to look upon P. H. S. as you have looked upon us, and hope to be worthy of our new name, citizen.



Dedication

We, the class of '28, do dedicate this, our annual, to the citizens of Plymouth. We look backward and see how you have made P. H. S. and the Lincoln Building possible; you have supported us in every undertaking. We do in this manner express our appreciation.

FORD BURNS, Principal.

AMY HEAD, Office Clerk

Ford.—Well, since this is the year for our home-coming we had better send out invitations to all members of the class of '28.

Amy—Do you remember how we raved around when Mr. Annis told us that before the school board would let us graduate we had to go to Madame Tell-It-All at South Bend and have our future foretold so he could have an accurate record of our future?

Ford—Yes, we thought it just as unnecessary as the red tape about the pass slip we used to have to have.

Amy—Say, did you ever notice, though, that even though we used to fuss around a lot about the red tape, nearly everything Mr. Annis insisted on turned out to be all right?

Ford—Yes, if it had not been for that ruling that was made just before we graduated we wouldn't have such an accurate record of the class of 1928.

Amy—I've almost forgotten about some of my classmates. I haven't seen them for so long. Let's take enough time as we address these cards to read what the records have to say.

Ford—You know I'm looking forward to this reunion with more joy than I ever supposed I would. Won't it be great if Cuff Skinner cancels his broadcasting engagement at K D K A and brings the famous Paul Whiteman orchestra to play for us. That will mean that not only Cuff will be here but Eloise, John Spahr, and Maurice Leffert.

Amy—So am I. I know too, that all through these twelve years others have thought of P. H. S. and are going to be glad to get back.

Ford—Well, if you're ready 'Ill do the reading and you do the writing.

Amy—All, right. I'm ready.

Ford—Here goes then. Elmer Anderson. We never used to hear much from Elmer while in school but now he's production manager of the Clizbe Foundry. Thelma Baker—Well, she's right here too, directing athletics in our own school.

Amy—Next.

Ford—Clayton Berkeypile—He's taken possession of his father's accessory shop. Thornton Blue—His address is South Bend. You know as a contractor he certainly has made a mark. Next is Buckingham.

Amy—I always did know he'd make good.

Ford—Yes, he has; Purdue knew it too; that's why he's Freshman coach. Next is Bradley; Clarence is doing just what his card says he would do, overseeing a big stock farm. I guess I don't need to comment on myself. Gee, I used to think Mr. Annis had a soft job.

Amy—Yes, when I used to hear some of the teachers complain of too much work I used to envy them.

Ford—Nina Cook—In the office of the "South Bend News Times." Helen Chaney—Old Cap Chaney, I'll be glad to see her. She hasn't been back for a long time. She's turning out the best girls' basketball teams DePauw has ever had. Bernice Fox—Married and living here in Plymouth. Margaret Furry—Married too. Her address is Argos. Esther Gerard—Married—Plymouth. Jane Gibson—I know she'll not be able to come back. You know I heard she was to star in her first big picture. But send her a card anyway.

Amy—Do you remember what a good salesman Martha Jane was for the "Mayflower"? She surely didn't miss her calling. I've never heard her "line" but I've heard she's the most successful woman the Burlington R. R. has on the road to advertize tours and trips.

Ford—Margaret Gimbel—In the office of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. Next come the two Hamptons. They are at the head of the Plymouth Poster and Sign Painting Co. Next is you. I guess there's no doubt as to where you are.

Amy—I guess that's so.

Ford—Well, Bernice was married right after graduation. Remember when she came back from Christmas vacation with her diamond? Helen Houghton is at the head of a big hotel in Chicago. They tell me all she's got to do is to look over menus and approve them. Esther Fay is in Indianapolis. Have you her address? I bet she's still vamping.

Amy—Better not let Esther hear you say that. Who next, Muriel?

Ford—Yes. Her card says private secretary to the governor. She must see Esther Fay once in a while. Maymie Kennedy—South Bend High School; head of Home Economics Department.

Amy—Say, we all knew Druke Kennedy would amount to something. Boy, don't you wish you were making the money he is? Managing a league baseball team isn't so bad.

Ford—Say, I was surprised at Mary Jane. With John's case on her I thought she'd be married instead of X-ray expert for her father. Guess you can't tell, can you? Paul Jones—He's still climbing. He's managing a J. C. Penney store in Gary. They say that that fashionable dressmaking shop opened up by Mildred Lechlitner, Marjorie Leland and Edna Bell McVey is some shop.

Amy—Well, you know they were all stars in Miss Palin's department.

Ford—Katherine Link—Art Institute, Chicago, will reach her. Fern McKesson and Helen Southworth are both in the music department of Oberlin. Send both cards there. John Logan—Basketball coach, Notre Dame. Gladys McCollough—Married; address, Plymouth. Same for Ruth Markley. Olive Marshall—Instructor of physical training, Jefferson High.

Amy—I guess "Peanut" Martin is a valuable man for Studebaker. He always did seem to like the Erskine.

Ford—Yes, and I guess Norbert John got enough experience on the "Mayflower" that he too took to the business world. He's making a pile on Wall Street. Mae Nifong—Married; address, Plymouth. Myrtle Nye—Teacher, Fort Wayne.

Amy—Remember how hard Elizabeth Patrick, Ethel Piper, and Mary Thornburg worked for exemptions in physics? They must have been interested for they're all doing research work in Chicago U.

Ford—Oh, yes, there's Henry Price. He is right here, manager of the A & P. Mary Alice, private secretary to one of the state officials. Here's her address. Katherine Rankin and Pauline have the same address. They're both with Keith's Circuit. Pauline is a whiz in her dancing stunts and Kate brings down the house with her comedienne stuff. I saw them once in Indianapolis. The next three in the file are all in Plymouth, working at Schlosser Bros. World Wonder Concern, Lucille Ronk, Genevieve and Geraldine Scott. Georgia Summe, Indiana's famous poetess, still claims Plymouth her home.

Amy—I know Georgianna's address, for you know she married right after graduation.

Ford—Next the Shoda sisters—Married too. Here are both names and addresses. Copy them from the cards. Tates—Yes, he's around here too, managing the famous independent basketball team. Lucius Tanner—An advertising salesman for Curtis Publishing Co., office, Chicago. Next—Freda. She won her way in politics all right, but that isn't hard to believe for do you remember those debating teams she was on?

Amy—I'll say I do.

Amy—Judie, remember how she used to pull down the A's? Boy, how we envied her! She's in the History Department of I. U. I know that.

Amy—Kathryn VanKirk—She's an expert accountant in the Studebaker Corporation. Beulah Webster, in dress designing department, Marshall Field. Claude Wright, head printer, Lincoln H. S.

Ford—I guess back in the good old days the teachers of P. H. S. thought we wouldn't amount to much, but we haven't made such a bad showing.

Amy—O, I guess not and won't it be a grand and glorious reunion?

LITERARY

MRS ROBERT SCHROEDER

Literary Section

In keeping with the theme of this annual, all legends and accounts related tell of the early history of this part of the country and are authentic.

The Indian's Quest

One evening in the early summer of 1835 Robert Schroeder, living six miles northeast of Plymouth, left his wife and children to attend a political meeting in Plymouth.

While he was gone an Indian came in search of liquor. This Mrs. Schroeder refused to give him, and even refused to give him admittance to the cabin. Living near the Indians all her life, she was not greatly frightened. The Indian was persistent in his efforts to obtain whiskey so he climbed on top of the cabin and went down the fire-place into the cabin. Mrs. Schroeder thinking he would leave, gave him a glass of liquor, but that did not satisfy him. She couldn't give him any more as there was none to give; much was never kept in the cabin, as Mr. Schroeder was a great temperance advocate. The Indian, still believing there was more liquor there, became angry and picked up a butcher knife. Mrs. Schroeder ran out of the cabin and he threw the knife at her, but fortunately he missed his aim.

Just then Mr. Schroeder came upon the scene. He took the Indian and severely punished him.

The next week the Indian brought a basket of berries to Mrs. Schroeder and said he never would be "bad" any more as "Shotaw" would get him. He always kept his word and never again went in search of liquor.

The Hungry Indians

One winter morning in the year of 1836, Thomas Logan, who lived on the Zehner farm near Argos, left his family to go to Rush county, his former home, for feed needed for his cattle. As traveling facilities were very poor, and on account of a terrible snow storm, it was impossible for him to return in less than twelve days.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Logan was startled by seeing several Indians looking in the window. When they saw that Mr. Logan was not at home they opened the door and went into the cabin. It was the custom of the Indians never to knock. There were a chief and seventeen members of his tribe. They could not speak English, but through their signs she discovered that they had come for food.

No one can imagine the fright of Mrs. Logan. Since she had formerly lived in the southern part of Indiana she did not know so much about the Indians and how to deal with them. By keeping quiet she thought they would not disturb her or the children. The youngest child was ill, and as soon as the Indian Chief discovered this, he told the other Indians to be quiet, as there was a sick child in the room.

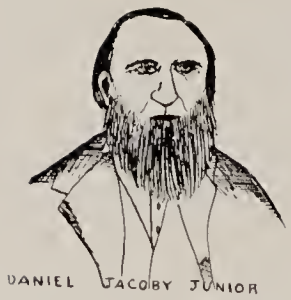
When night came the Indians still remained in the cabin. Later they lay around the fireplace with their heads as near the fire as possible. Whenever one would make a noise the chief would make signs for him to be quiet. Finally morning came. This brave pioneer woman must have been glad as she knew she could then prepare something for the Indians to eat and they would leave.

They had several bushels of potatoes buried, so Mrs. Logan dug up one of the baskets and cooked nearly a bushel of potatoes in a large iron kettle. She also prepared bread. They ate all of the potatoes and bread and then left, thanking her in the best ways they knew for the good food they had received.

This shows the friendliness and good will of the Indians and the courage of pioneer women.

When Mr. Logan arrived home Mrs. Logan had what we would term a "hair-breadth escape" story to tell him. In her later years she greatly enjoyed telling this and other stories to her grandchildren and friends. One of her grandchildren who is still living today and from whom this story was gotten is Phebe C. Willey of this city.

Pioneers of Plymouth



Daniel Jacoby Junior

Daniel Jacoby, Jr., came to Marshall County in 1847 and settled in Center Township. His chief business was farming and in this he was very successful. He was generous, loving, kind, and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Daniel McDonald

Daniel McDonald was one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Marshall County. He first came to Plymouth in 1836. As representative he used his influence to secure the monument for Chief Menominee at Twin Lakes. He was editor of the "Plymouth Democrat," Marshall County representative, and county clerk. He had many personal friends and was popular with all classes.

Thomas McDonald

Thomas McDonald was born in Ohio and with his parents moved to Franklin County, Indiana, before the state was organized. He moved to Marshall County in 1836 and lived near Maxinkuckee Lake. He was efficient and honest. He taught the first school in Marshall County. The official positions that he held were county commissioner, land appraiser, auditor, county school examiner, and county superintendent of schools.

Colonel Abel C. Pepper

Colonel Pepper was the government Indian agent who was stationed at Logansport. He filled several offices under the state and nation in a very acceptable manner. One of the most important services to his state was his securing treaties with the Pottawatomie Indians in northern Indiana. In these treaties there were provisions stating the Indians must go to the western reservation by 1838. Menominee refused to go, but was compelled to by the militia. Colonel Pepper was always a commendable citizen and was highly respected by those who knew him.

Colonel Thomas Summer

Colonel Summer came from Wayne County, Indiana, and engaged in the business of agriculture. He moved to Marshall County in 1849 and located five miles southeast of Plymouth. He was a member of the state legislature in 1851-1852. In 1856 Mr. Summer moved to Illinois where he took part in the rebellion. In 1863 he became lieutenant-colonel. While still in the army he located again in Marshall County and was once more elected to the legislature. Colonel Summer possessed a great decision of character, was charitable, had a loving disposition, and was a gentleman.

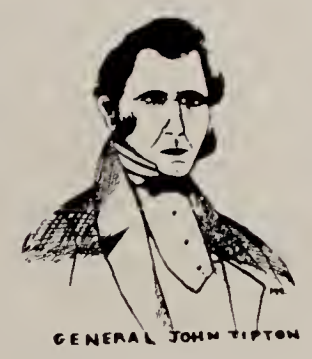
Cyrus Taber

Mr. Taber was the first white child born in Marshall County. His father, Samuel Taber, was one of the first settlers of this county. He had a fair education, chiefly by his own efforts, and he understood the needs of the county for which he was willing to do anything. His occupation was farming. After his death it was said of him that "he lived the life of a Christian, and died the death of the righteous."

Arthur Thompson

Mr. Thompson came to Plymouth in 1864 where he assisted George H. Benson in the lumber trade for two years. Then he worked for H. G. Thayer in the grain business. He was first deputy treasurer and then treasurer of Marshall County. In 1879 he became senior member of the firm of Thompson and Brink Planing Mill. The next year he managed the business alone. Mr. Thompson was chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee. He was clerk of Plymouth, director of the First National Bank of Marshall County, and councilman. He was a man of good business tact, wonderful executive ability, and a good politician, and was greatly admired by his friends.

General John Tipton



General Tipton first came to Indiana in 1807 and settled near the Ohio river. He enlisted in a company recruited in his neighborhood. This company in 1811, fought in the battle of Tippecanoe. At this time he was major and was promoted to the captaincy. After returning to his home at Corydon he was promoted to brigadier general and was given command of the militia in southern Indiana. He held several county and state offices and was U. S. senator from 1831 to 1839. He was honored and respected by all as an honest, conscientious citizen, neighbor, and friend.

Removal of the Indians from Marshall County

Shebatahauk, the village of Menominee and his tribe of Pottawatomie Indians, was located five miles southeast of the present Plymouth, and is now called Twin Lakes. The village was composed of a hundred wigwams, cabins, tepees, and a chapel erected by French missionaries. Though without a school education, these Indians lived happily and peacefully under their chief Menominee, who was more of a preacher than a warrior. He taught his people to live uprightly and in place of a war-club, carried a stick on which he made a mark for each of his sermons.

On October 22, 1832, Chief Simon Pokagon signed over all of Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan, except a few sections such as the one at Twin Lakes. August 5, 1836, Indian agent Abel C. Pepper bought the section between Plymouth and Culver from three sub-chiefs without Menominee's consent and removed the Indians to Kansas. Of course, Menominee refused to go as he had not signed the treaty. Dishonest men wrongly represented the case to Governor Wallace who ordered General John Tipton and his soldiers to remove the tribe. August, 1838, a council was held at Shebatahauk and Menominee closed his eloquent speech with these words "My brother, the President, is just, but he listens to the words of the young braves who have lied; and when he knows the truth he will leave me to my home. I have not sold my lands; I will not sell them. I have not signed any treaty; I will not sign any. I am not going to leave my lands, and I don't want to hear anymore about it."

Whereupon soldiers rushed upon the Indians, disarmed them, destroyed the village, and proceeded west with them. Father Petit joined his flock and helped their condition a great deal, but during the 900 mile journey, 150 out of the 859 who started, died from hardships and malaria fever. Menominee, an old man at the time, was never heard of again and died broken-hearted far from the home of his fathers, and lies in an unmarked grave. The twenty-two sections of land were never legally transferred to the government and so could be claimed now.

In 1905 Daniel McDonald, representative from Marshall County introduced a bill for $2500 for the purpose of erecting a monument to Menominee and rebuilding the old Indian chapel at Twin Lakes. March 12, 1907, the bill was finally passed, and the committee appointed was Charles T. Mattingly, Plymouth; Colonel A. F. Fleet, Sup't, Culver Military Academy; William Hoyne, Notre Dame. John A. McFarlin donated the spot and the monument was erected. This is the only monument to an Indian in Indiana so far as is known.

It was dedicated "In memory of Chief Menominee and his band of 859 Pottawatomie Indians removed from the reservation September 4, 1838, by a company of soldiers under the command of General John Tipton, authorized by Governor David Wallace."

Theacallosia Literary Society

The Theacallosia Literary Society, which was organized two years ago, has as its members B and A Students of the upper class girls. The meetings are held in the homes of students every second Wednesday of the school year, and the idea of truth and beauty in literature (the meaning of Theacallosia) is enforced in all the meetings. The society has now an enrollment of twenty-five, and in the spring all the seniors will receive honorary diplomas because they have held a chair office, and know how to conduct a business meeting correctly. The society wishes that more students would realize that "Labor conquers all. Seize the opportunity" is meant for them.

1927 Awards

MAYFLOWER '27

P. H. S. and especially the class of 1927 is to be congratulated. We, in our division of schools, 300 to 699, took third place in the Annual Yearbook Contest conducted by the Indiana High School Press Association. In the National Contest conducted by the University of Minnesota, the 1927 "Mayflower" was given second rating called, "First Class Honor Rating—Excellent."

COMMERCIAL AWARDS

Last spring, 1927, in the Amateur Typewriting B Contest, Eloise Nelson, Frances Kellison, and Helen Rains, won second place for Plymouth. Amy Head won a high place in the Novice Typewriting Contest at Mishawaka which entitled her to go to the State Contest.

The penmanship team composed of Virginia Miller, Marcelle South and Lucile Stoneburner took second place in the State Contest at Muncie..

LINCOLN ESSAY

Every year the Elgin Watch Co. ,Springfield, Ill., conducts a Lincoln Essay contest in the high schools of the country. Last year Katherine Link, '28, was awarded the bronze medal.

LATIN CONTEST

The Latin department was represented in the District Contest by Julia Trowbridge. She was in the Virgil division.

1927 SCHOLASTIC AWARDS

Ruth Myron was awarded the Thomas Shakes gold medal, the Roscoe A. Chase medal and the Holtzendorf check for the highest scholastic standing in the class of '27. Fern Cox won the Henry Pershing silver medal for second place. Honorable mention was given Winnifred VanVactor.

LOGAN AWARD

The late Harley Logan has established a new scholarship fund, the details of which are not yet known. The class of '28 will be the first to benefit from this award.

Football

The Plymouth Red Devils went through the 1928 season fairly successful, losing four games and winning two, along with two ties. Many larger schools were played and the Red Devils held them all.

The Froebel game opened the season and a real football game was played. Froebel, now state champions went home with a good, but well earned victory, the score being 30-0.

In the second game of the season Plymouth crushed Rochester and they upheld their record again this fall. Fruits, Born, and McLaughlin made our touchdowns.

In the third start Warsaw struggled and fought to earn a 14-6 victory. At the end of the third quarter the score stood 6-0 for Plymouth. Heim gave us this by a seventy-eight yard run, on an intercepted pass. In the fourth quarter Warsaw came back strong and scored two touchdowns from passes while our boys were held scoreless.

On October 8, the Pilgrims journeyed to Logansport. In the first few minutes of the game Logansport scored on blocked punts and the rest of the half was fought on a par. At the half Coach Wood gave the boys the necessary information and they scored in the third quarter.

The Blue Blazers of Elkhart gave us our worst defeat of the season by the score of 45-7. Many end runs resulted in touchtowns for Elkhart. In the second half Plymouth scored her only touchdown on an intercepted pass.

The Red Devils again tasted defeat at the hands of the strong Goshen eleven. Plymouth could not get the breaks and at the end of the game Goshen was leading 27-0.

Staging a fighting comeback our team battled Columbia City's undefeated eleven to a 0-0 tie. Both goals were threatened once or twice, but both teams were like stone walls and held in time of danger.

Keeping up their fighting spirit and hard playing the Pilgrims turned the tables on LaPorte and whipped them 6-0. Our boys swept the Slicers off their feet and scored a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. From then on our boys held them helpless. Not once did they get beyond our thirty yard line. Born gave us our only touchdown.

Basket Ball

The basket-ball season opened November 23, when our Red Jackets traveled to Bremen where they won by a 39-24 score. The next week Plymouth fell before the powerful Valparaiso quintet 29-13. The Mishawaka Cavemen won over our boys the next week. Whiting took our measure by only one point in a thrilling game. In the next two weeks the Red Jackets lost to Culver and East Chicago. Warsaw took the Pilgrims into camp by a lone point after we had led throughout the game. The boys were playing a real brand of basket-ball but fell short a few points in every game. Elkhart won from our team and the next night we bowed to Rochester in a fast game. The locals staged a come-back the following week and defeated LaPorte. The next evening the Bourbon quintet went down before the local lads, but the following three weeks Hammond, Goshen and Emerson handed us defeat. Next we traveled to Nappanee to get revenge, but were unsuccessful. We then won from Argos but lost to Michigan City in an evenly matched counter. South Bend and Froebel also inflicted defeats on us for the final games of the season.

THE SECOND TEAM

Winning eleven out of fourteen games, the student body is proud of the record made by the Plymouth Reserves. They played some real basket-ball in many of the games, and are wonderful material for the future Red Jackets. The Reserves lost only to Richland Center's varsity twice, and to the Warsaw seconds once. In their victories they included such teams as the varsities of North Liberty, West High and Tyner, and the seconds of Rochester, LaPorte, and Emerson.

THE TOURNAMENT

Twelve teams from St. Joseph and Marshall counties assembled at Mishawaka for the annual sectional basket-ball tournament. Mishawaka, South Bend, and Plymouth were the best of the teams represented. Plymouth battled her way through the first round by defeating the lowly, but hard fighting North Liberty quintet 45-6. Plymouth then played Lakeville in the semi-finals and won 29-15. This paired Plymouth and Mishawaka in the finals. The final game between Plymouth and Mishawaka was very closely contested and at no time were there many points difference. Plymouth was defeated but went down fighting. The final score was 34-20. Taber was given forward position on the all-sectional first team, and Heim was selected for center in the second team while Tomlinson and Spahr made honorable mention.

Socker Tournament

In the fall, a socker tournament was held between physical training classes in which the 5th period class proved victorious.

Girls' Basket-ball

The girls' basket-ball season of 1927-28 was undoubtedly the most successful one the Plymouth girls have had for some time. Twelve games were played and eight of them were victories. During the course of the season, Plymouth defeated every team with whom they had scheduled games with the exception of Bourbon. The spirit of the team was highly commendable. Seven players, H. Chaney, Marshall, Turner, Lechlitner, Rankin and Baker graduate this year, but much good material remains for next season.

Baseball

Two baseball tournaments were played off this spring; one an inter-class event, and the other between physical training classes. The interest in baseball is growing and much enthusiasm has been shown.

Track

An invitational track meet was held April 21. Teams from Bourbon, Culver, Bremen, Argos, LaPaz and Plymouth were entered. The events were 50-yard dash, low hurdles, baseball and basket-ball far throw, shot put, running broad jump, high jump and relay. The contests were close throughout the entire meet and many very good records were established.

FEATURE

Tug of War

On the afternoon of September 15, all of P. H. S. thoroughly enjoyed a tug of war. The Freshmen and the Junior boys were on the west bank of Yellow River, between the Garro and LaPorte street bridges and the Sophomores and Seniors were on the east. Each side numbered sixty-three.

In the morning a rope had been stretched across the river and the stage was all set by noon. By one o'clock the boys, in overalls or other suitable garb, were in their places as assigned by Captains Ulrich and Born. The girls were on the banks giving their support to their respective classes.

Mr. Annis called, "One, two, three"; there was a report of the gun and then a steady pull. The rope broke and both sides were on the ground. The rope was tied and again the same result. It was seen that the strength of 126 boys was too much for the rope and it was suggested that a collection be taken and a new rope should be purchased.

During the intermission, Margaret Keller and some other girls on the east bank were successful in stepping on a yellow jacket's nest and were badly stung.

The new rope was stretched and the tug began. For a few minutes neither side gave ground, but gradually the husky Seniors and Sophs made the Freshies and Juniors give ground. Despite the fact that the latter worked hard they were at last pulled in and most of the boys went home wet but satisfied.

Standard Covers Adopted

The 1928 "Mayflower" staff decided to use the same cover design for the annual, that was used by the class of '27. By so doing the staff hopes to establish a precedent to be followed by the other classes.

Christmas Programs

On the evenings of Dec. 19 and 20, Christmas programs were put on under the direction of Mr. Floyd M. Annis and Miss Ruth Hill. The program on the first evening was opened by the mixed quartet. The second part of the evening's entertainment was composed of carols sung by the children from the Webster and Washington Buildings. The program ended by the presentation of a cantata by the high school glee club.

The program of the second evening was divided into two parts. The first was a concert given by the high school band under the direction of Mr. Annis. The second part was a play "Why the Chimes Rang," directed by Miss Ruth Hill. After this program the High School Glee Club sang carols in all parts of the city. The only invitation needed was a burning candle in the window.

Junior-Senior Banquet

On May 20, 1927, the class of '28 entertained the class of '27 at the annual Junior Senior Prom. The gymnasium was beautifully decorated to represent a flower garden. A banquet was served and each guest was given a favor. Helen Southworth acted as toastmistress of the evening. Music for the dance, which followed, was furnished by the Bell Hops. It was considered as one of the best banquets ever given.

Banking

Last year Nathan Levy, a senior in South Bend High School, came to P. H. S. to urge us to begin 100% banking. After he had finished his plea the president of the Senior class challenged the other classes to reach and keep 100% banking throughout the remainder of the year. The challenge was accepted. From that time P. H. S. has maintained 100% record. This is a record that is revered by P. H. S. and is the envy of many high schools.

Junior High School Activities 1927-28

The Junior High School has increased to the present number of 228, which made it necessary to add one more teacher to the staff. The 7th and 8th grades are each divided into three sections or groups and the 6th into two sections.

An important feature in the Junior High School program this year was the addition of sheet metal and wiring work to the industrial arts course.

The Junior High School orchestra consists of 26 instruments. The violin instructor, Mr. Edwyn Hames, from the Fine Arts Studio of South Bend, has 28 pupils studying violin.

The Audubon club for the study of birds was organized in connection with the geography classes. More than one hundred members are in this work.

Final Palmer penmanship certificates were received by about 90% of the 8th grade and more than 75% of the 7th. This is a remarkable record and shows wonderful improvement in penmanship.

The banking classes in the Junior High School head the list of Junior High Schools in the state of Indiana; they have maintained a 100% record of banking during the past four years, and for this consistency, they were issued a special honor certificate from Thrift Inc. At the time this article goes to the press the pupils have on deposit in the school savings bank approximately $3500.00. The banking work has been directed and supervised by Miss Ella Cole.

The classes in English were organized into different English clubs, with their own officers who conducted the business of the club meetings, while committees had charge of the work that was to be done in watching the various individuals' oral English. Some very practical work was done in these clubs.

The Junior Historical Society was organized four years ago and their present membership numbers 204. During the past year the society sponsored a Hallowe'en party, added to the J. H. S. library, purchased a portable phonograph and several records, made valuable additions to the large collection of clippings and pamphlets in possession of the society, and made several copies of flags which were added to the flag display. Individual members cooperated with the historical department in the collection of stamps, coins, and relics of various kinds. Many photographs taken by members were filed with the society. The officers of the society are:

We Are Responsible for—

"Much that you think about"—The Plymouth Dai'y Democrat—and

"Much of your entertainment"—Rialto Theatre.

The community has developed both institutions by a patronage that we have tried to merit.

A conference was being held in Mr. Annis's office. Those present were Herb Houghton, Mr. Annis and some members of the P. H. S. basketball squad.

Herb — "After the basketball games when the boys eat at the Union, I have noticed a certain boy swiping two spoons."

Mr. Annis—"My boy, I ask you, what are your intentions?"

Accused—"The doctor asked me to take two teaspoons after each meal."

RESPONSIVENESS

The responsiveness of a retail store to the tastes and needs of its customers measures its success. A community will develop a small store into a larger and better one if it learns that in that store are to be found at all times the things it needs or likes. Showing the right goods at the right time and at the right price is the policy of this store.
